

'Regarding Henry' by Jeffrey Abrams

DR. SULTAN: The bullet hasn't moved. I wish we could get at it ... but if we're a little lucky, it'll never move and he'll be fine. (looks through charts) His brainwaves and reflexes look great. For a guy that's just come out of a three month coma he's in better shape than I am.

A long beat.

(sighs) Sarah, the truth is, it's going to be a long rehabilitation. It could take six months ... it could take six years. We're starting from scratch here. Henry doesn't remember how to speak, or how to move, or anything. His memories are still in there, I mean one day everything might come back, but there are no guarantees. (a beat) There's nothing more we can do here. I've spoken to a clinic in Bedford that I've done some work with. We can get Henry in there immediately. (a beat) Sarah, I just want to make sure you're prepared. Henry might not remember you, or your daughter, or anyone. Ever.
