500 Days of Summer by Scott Neustadter & Michael H. Weber

TOM: This is my favorite spot. It's... it's hard to explain. You really wanna know? (points) You see that building with the orange hue? That's been there since 1911. Over there, that's the Continental. LA's first skyscraper. Built in 1904. People think of LA as this place with no history, you know, where nothing is real. That's only cause they're not paying attention.

That's ... a parking lot. Most of that is parking lots. But there's so much beauty too. See, if it was me... I just... I'd make sure people noticed. That's what I would do. Integrate the buildings better. Play off the facades, maximize the light capacity, there's really so much.
